

GANBOLD DORJEREM, known as "Bono", is a young contemporary Mongolian artist whose painting style could recall some of Picasso's paintings. He is the grandson of the famous Mongolian artist Minjuur Tserendorj.

The artist

Ganbold Dorjerem is born in 1982 in Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia. He graduated from the School of Fine Arts of the University of Arts and Culture of Mongolia. He is currently a professor of arts at the "Children Design Center" in Ulaanbaatar. In 2011, he obtained the Gold Medal, Best Artist, Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia.

Artwork

Ganbold Dorjerem combines modernism and tradition with a strong particularity: he is especially inspired by the Gobi desert and its numerous riders.
